

0 to 1 Composition Briefer

Necessity of information:

- Do not mix the user instruction and context with the “Additional Personal Information” in the response section. The instruction and context determine if more info is needed or not.
- A user instruction may need critical info, but that info may be provided as part of “Additional Personal Info”, which would be used in the final response
- Suggested info by the model does NOT automatically mean the user instruction needs more info. The suggested info can just be complimentary, and the instruction may be sufficient to perform the task

Example:

Confirm Thomas' submission was received and explain the software logic.

The above request without context requires the additional information (i.e. explain what software logic?)

Additional Personal Information

User response to question "What submission did Thomas send?" is:
Thomas sent the final project report for the Q1 business analysis.

User response to question "Explain the software logic for Thomas' submission" is:
Upon submission, the system automatically generates a unique identifier for tracking. It then scans for any required attachments to ensure completeness. Next, it sends a confirmation email to Thomas' registered address, indicating the successful receipt of his report. Finally, the submission is archived in the database under the designated project folder for future reference.

Additional info is provided but in the model's response section. Therefore, the instructions need more info, but the response can be fulfilled with the additional info provided from the user's personal info/device.

On the other hand, the example below provides instructions plus additional context, so the necessity of extra information is not critical.

User Instructions

Develop a promotional screenplay for a gym's annual membership card. Emphasize value for money and additional benefits with an energetic, encouraging, and friendly tone. Include call-to-action phrases. Highlight exceptional value, attribute services, and special benefits such as free classes, personal training sessions, and health data monitoring.

User Provided Context

The gym offers a variety of services including free classes, personal training sessions, and health data monitoring. The annual membership card provides exceptional value with these benefits, encouraging a healthy lifestyle. The gym is located in a vibrant community, making it accessible and convenient for members.

However, pay attention to this task as it has a few assumed details that affect the first question!

Remember, additional personal information is provided from the user's device to help provide a better response. If the information in the response is coming from this section, do NOT penalize as hallucination, as long as it's correct.

Additional Personal Information

User response to question "When is my dentist appointment next week?" is:
Your dentist appointment is on March 13, 2026, at 10:00 AM.

Pay attention to subjects, there are some tasks with subjects that have:

- Hyper subjective lang
- Verbosity
- Not following title case
- Not following one topic
- Using articles/prepositions, which need to be lower case

If the subject fails in any of these you need to leave the option Unselected.

Supplementary Information/Suggestions:

As long as these are related to the composition itself, on topic, and would be complimentary to the existing info, mark them as helpful.

If it's related to action items on the device (set reminder, call, etc.), they're neutral. If it suggests something that may be already provided or redundant, even if on topic, mark as neutral.