

TC Proofread Feedback Nov.19

Instruction Following

Common mistakes:

- Failing to penalize unnecessary changes (extra words, wording changes, stylistic edits, tone shifts) even though guidelines require a downgrade.
- Incorrectly penalizing outputs that simply repeat the input, despite the guidelines clearly stating that these should be Fully Following Instructions.
Note: Only an exact repeat is fully following. If even a comma was changed or extra space removed, that's not an exact repeat and therefore cannot be Fully Following UNLESS that was the only issue with the input. In which case it's considered that the model reviewed the input and fixed all errors.
- Overlooking cases where only some errors were fixed, which should result in Partially Following Instructions.
- Missing small uncorrected details (spacing, punctuation, minor grammar) that should trigger a downgrade.

Impact

As instruction following is closely related to Composition, the issues missed in this dimension will sometimes cascade into Composition and eventually Satisfaction, creating a large gap between the expected and provided grading.

Composition

Common mistakes:

1. Failing to capture when a new error has been introduced, which would fail the dimension OR
2. Accepting responses with uncorrected or newly introduced errors as "Acceptable" or "Good".
3. Not recognizing that minor residual mistakes still lower the composition score to "Acceptable".
4. Penalizing responses when no errors exist. An input text that is good does not require changes, and a repeat would therefore be Good.
5. Under-penalizing or not penalizing grammar, punctuation, spacing, and formatting errors.

Reminder:

- An exact repeat that contains errors is Bad.
- A exact repeat where the input was already error free is Good.
- All errors fixed without change in style/tone or minimal to none change of word choice is Good.
- Unnecessary changes in wording and partial error fixing is Acceptable. Even if one out of five errors was not fixed – Acceptable.
- Format/structure of the response was changed – Acceptable.
- Change in style/tone is Bad (different from following instructions!)
- New errors introduced is Bad.
- Most errors not fixed is Bad.

Impact

As the task scope is to Proofread content, Composition is one of the most critical dimensions. Overlooking errors or penalizing answers that don't contain issues will gravely affect the Satisfaction evaluation.

Groundedness

Common mistakes:

- Missing subtle semantic changes introduced by the model (word choice changes that actually altering the meaning compared to the input).
- Incorrectly marking partially grounded responses as fully grounded.
- Occasional incorrect flagging of groundedness issues where none exist.

Remember: Proofreading generally does not require wording changes compared to the input. In terms of Groundedness, you should be just matching the input to the output. The moment you see a change in wording, it should be a signal for you to verify whether it affects this dimension, i.e. does it change the intended meaning from the input? Does it change the tense or the grammatical gender or number? Otherwise, it should be a relatively easy check if no changes to the wording have been made.

Comprehensiveness

Common mistake:

- Incorrect penalization even when all essential information was present.

Remember: As the expectation is to maintain the original input pretty much the same, there should be no content removed from the input, unless the removal is necessary as a correction (eg. “the” was used twice in sequence). A simple comparison between input and response will tell you if any important content was removed, be it a sentence or keywords, which in turn would affect Comprehensiveness.

Satisfaction Issues

Common mistakes:

- Overrating or underrating satisfaction: this occurs as a result of misjudging the primarily the dimensions of IF and Composition.
- Inconsistent application of satisfaction rules across the board. Use the tables for Satisfaction criteria in the GLs. The bullet points will guide you to the correct grading but, again, evaluating the prior dimensions like Composition and IF are critical for a better understanding of Satisfaction grading. As the primary goal of the task is to fix minor errors while maintaining the same wording, failure to fix any errors or introducing new errors would be Unsatisfying responses.
- Penalizing responses when all dimensions are good. This issue occurs across various task when graders evaluate all dimensions as good but downgrade Satisfaction to SS. You should not be downgrading Satisfaction if you have deemed everything else to be good.

Localization

Common mistakes:

- Missing formatting and punctuation patterns characteristic of the locale (spacing, comma/period rules, date/number formats).
- Confusing composition issues with localization issues (mis-categorizing errors).
- Over-penalizing localization where no real localization issue exists.

Remember: Proofreading does not require the model to re-structure the sentences, change the style or tone. If this happens, pay attention that the new sentence does not sound unnatural/awkward in your locale, in which case you might have to raise a Localization issue.

Harmfulness

Common mistakes:

- False positives: flagging harm where there was none, e.g. “smoke” misinterpreted.

Locale specific examples

(Note: each task was done by 3 different graders. These examples point out dimension errors where 2 or 3 graders got it wrong).

1. Groundedness should have been penalized in response C, as it slightly changed the meaning in input text in dropping “mi” from the original “venirmi” vs “venire” (or same meaning would have been “venire a raccogliermi”), but not mentioning at all “mi” changed the meaning.

Response A

Ho avuto un'esperienza terribile stasera. Ho ordinato una pizza e delle alette di pollo piccanti. Al momento di pagare, ho contestato il conto totale. Anna, la ragazza alla cassa, ha detto che le alette di pollo costavano 9,99 €; tuttavia, sul menu scritto sulla lavagna il prezzo era di 8,99 €. Si è rifiutata di farmi pagare il prezzo esposto, dicendo che avevano appena aggiornato i prezzi. Non ha voluto sentire ragioni, quindi per principio ho annullato l'intero ordine. Ovviamente non le importava nulla e sembrava persino contenta di sé. Mentre uscivamo, anche il fattorino se ne stava andando. Ci ha riso in faccia apertamente, avendo assistito alla conversazione. È stata una delle peggiori esperienze con il servizio clienti che mi siano mai capitate. In più, sembra che siano disposti a comprare recensioni positive su TripAdvisor. Pubblicherò una foto per farvi capire.

3. Following instructions should have been penalized and marked as partially following because some of the issues have been fixed but not all (space before”?” And extra space before “tenuto”), for the same reason composition should have been penalized too as not all issues have been fixed.

Sei sempre felice quando squilla il tuo telefono?\n\nPer quanto mi riguarda, il telefono è stato inventato nel XIX secolo. Ha influenzato le nostre vite molto rapidamente, sebbene esistessero diversi modi di comunicazione, come la TV, ad esempio. Da quando è stato introdotto l'Internet, molti di noi non avrebbero immaginato la vita senza. Siamo stati persino in grado di avere il nostro proprio telefono, tenuto in tasca per un bel po' di tempo.

Tuttavia, sei sempre felice quando squilla il tuo telefono personale ? D'altra parte, mi chiedo se hai mai vissuto delle situazioni in cui non avresti voluto avere il cellulare acceso.

Questa invenzione ha completamente cambiato la mia vita. Da quando viaggio per il mondo, non avrei immaginato di essere in grado di rimanere in contatto con la famiglia o gli amici senza Internet o il mio cellulare, per esempio.

Nonostante l'opportunità di rimanere in contatto con gli amici quando siamo lontani da casa, dovremmo essere consapevoli di come usarlo senza disturbare gli altri, per esempio, quando siamo in treno.

4. The response should have been penalized as Partially Following Instructions as it only fixed some formatting issue. For the same reason Composition should have been penalized too. Additionally, localization is also affected as the quotation marks are not correct.

5. Response should have been graded as Partially Following Instructions as it fixed “vede” into “vedere”, it added the full stop at the end BUT did not fix the extra space before “le date”. For the same reason composition should have been penalized too and marked as Acceptable, and overall rated as SS.

2. In the example below, all graders correctly downgraded the Composition to Acceptable, but missed to downgrade the Instruction Following to Partially Following. There are added commas in the response, so some errors were fixed, but the use of 'hende' is a remaining error in the response.

1. Composition issues since Response A and B introduce unnecessary rewriting, which is a violation. Response A also changes “pesado” to “pesada”, which is wrong and an introduction of a new error. Therefore, Resp A is Bad Composition and resp B is Acceptable.

2. Response B keeps the “tou” in the response. While natural in pt_PT, it does sound too informal and more used orally than written. Changing it to the full form in this case would not change the tone and the correction is warranted. Composition should be Bad as the error was not fixed.

4. Response adds the word “um”. This sentence is already grammatically correct without the article. Adding “um” is an unnecessary change in wording, which is not permitted in proofreading. As per the guideline, unnecessary wording changes must be penalized in FI and Composition.

5. The original sentence is grammatically correct and doesn't require any correction. Therefore, a repeat would be expected. However, both responses altered the word "webspeak" to "web speak," which is not a grammatical correction. Therefore, it should be graded as Partially Following, and this would in turn affect Composition as well.

Response C

6. The added comma in "não tenho sorte no jogo, e só fumei..." is incorrect for PT because you don't separate coordinated clauses with a comma before e when the subject doesn't change. It introduces a punctuation error that wasn't in the input text.

User

Não, bebia socialmente há uns anos, mas por questões de saúde deixei. Raramente bebo agora. Tenho um desejo sexual forte. Não tenho sorte no jogo e só fumei marijuana.

7. Responses B and C alter the sentence's meaning and structure even without any grammatical errors. For example, "Eu queria só" is rewritten as "Eu só queria," a style change rather than a correction. Additionally, both responses introduce an unnecessary article before “dia 12,” since dates in pt-PT are treated as adverbial time expressions, they don’t need an article (determiner). Response B does not correct the capitalization in “Sexta”. These modifications are unnecessary, and the guidelines mandate penalizing any change that isn’t a genuine grammatical correction, in both IF and Composition.

User

Eu queria só Sexta, foi ela que disse dia 12.

Predicted Category: WRITING

Response B

Eu só queria a Sexta, foi ela que disse o dia 12.

Response C

Eu só queria sexta, foi ela que disse o dia 12.

1. In the below example, all graders missed the errors that remained in all three responses, and so didn’t downgrade the Composition and Instruction Following (to ‘Acceptable’ and ‘Partially Following’). Please carefully note the remaining issues, and whenever you notice that some errors are corrected, and some still remain, make sure you’ve penalized this in the appropriate dimensions.

Response A: the Composition and Instruction Following issue remains with the word(s) ‘lördagkväll’, which should be connected with an ‘s’, and the punctuation is not improved at all.

Response B: It only improved the punctuation, and left the spelling issue with ‘Icakassas’. There is also an issue with separating the word(s) ‘lördagkväll’, since ‘s’ should have been added in between, so the response should have the same grading as above.

Response C: The same issue with ‘lördagkväll’ remains.
